

Dr. Melstrom joined the agricultural economics faculty at OSU in 2014 as an assistant professor with a specialty in natural resource economics.

He is developing a strong research program, with a notable record of publications, grant awards, interdisciplinary research and graduate advising.

The SAEA Emerging Scholar Award highlights the work of high-performing early-career professionals in agricultural economics.