

DIVISION OF Agricultural Sciences
& Natural Resources

NATIONAL SEARCH TO FILL THE POSITION OF

Department Head, Agricultural Economics

The Division of Agricultural Sciences and Natural Resources, Oklahoma State University, invites nominations for the position of department head for the agricultural economics department. This position is administratively responsible to the vice president and dean.

The Department of Agricultural Economics has a national and international reputation for excellence in teaching, research and extension. The department head administers state, national and international programs. Agricultural Economics employs 27 tenure track and eight non-tenure track faculty members. In spring of 2019, students in agricultural economics and agribusiness programs numbered more than 600 and the department had 49 graduate students majoring in one of our masters or doctoral degree programs.

NOMINATION AND APPLICATION PROCEDURE

Nominations are being accepted and will be followed by the full official application process this summer (2019). Interest or nominations for the department head position may be sent to dasnradmin_search@okstate.edu.

When the application process opens, detailed information containing the application link will be sent via email to interested persons and nominees.

FIND OUT MORE

Discover more about the Division of Agricultural Sciences and Natural Resources at dasnr.okstate.edu and the Department of Agricultural Economics at agecon.okstate.edu.

More information about OSU and Stillwater may be accessed at: okstate.edu, Reasons to Work at OSU, visitstillwater.org and stillwaterchamber.org.